

ABSTRACT

[0039] System and method for transparently obtaining consumer preferences for products, product features and product marketing. A method comprises receiving a request to obtain consumer feedback. At least one product description data is then sent to a plurality of clients. After receiving feedback data from the plurality of clients transparent to the user of the clients, a consumer feedback summary based on the feedback data is processed. The method may be implemented on a system such as a computer.